The timing of this "sorting through" / "tidying up" session was particularly in-auspicious, coming as it did two days after Thanksgiving, the quintessential (à la mode) home and hearth holiday, which was very nice at the Golf Course. There were six of us — HARP/WSP, Helly/DWP, Peg, SRP — and we very rationally and non-hysterically went about enjoying the sumptuous and bountiful and excellently prepared roast turkey dinner. Linen, silver, crystal — the works. I have finally learned not to over-eat in such situations — the pain is too great following an over-eating session. When the dishes were all washed and put away, we kids (or is it "us kids") went to Eckdale so that SRP could feed and water the birds. Very amusing. Chantrelle Crowed repeatedly on my command / urging, and DWP/Helly/Peg were very amused. DWP took several photographs of the bird feeding session. Back at the Golf Course, I did some washing and ironing and filled up my water pails. In mid evening, the family gathered for a "turkey sandwich", which was, of course, wonderful, and then SRP returned to Eckdale, where I "pasted up" the Grivored descendants 1986 list — in the course of the day I did the typing of the additions / corrections on DWP's machine. I then withdrew and read in the book on the Cecils of Hatfield House that I am now reading.

12/3/86 p. 1 — on my way into Carbonale to substitute for Mrs. Ann Graziano (substitute day 32 — 12/3/86; I wonder if I will be paid for the day?) I hit a patch of ice on the Dundaff hill above Carbonale and went flying into the ditch on the opposite side of the road! What a terrifying experience. Thank God there were no other cars on the road. Had there been, I could have been easily killed in a collision and slid across the roadway — when my car finally stopped (as I whacked into a tree) I was completely OK — physically — but very rattled psychologically. I couldn't believe that I was the accident victim that I was — I sat in the car for a minute and counted my blessings & then got out and a car came by — I hailed the car. It was a young woman who
